British Sugar Group is one of the largest sugar producers in the world and a wholly owned subsidiary of Associated British Foods Plc: a FTSE 100 international food ingredients group. We operate in ten countries throughout the world, employing 42,000 employees, producing 5 million tonnes of sugar per year.

Our business is not just about sugar, we have expanded the range of co-products we produce. These products include animal feed, soil conditioning and landscaping products, electricity and even tomatoes. The Group is also involved in the developing bioethanol industry and seed coating and enhancement technology.

From engineers to Agriculturalists we rely on a wide range of professionals. While the group is extremely diverse, it retains a unique culture that is as friendly and supportive as a small company but with the excitement of a truly international business. It also means that every individual has a chance to make a highly visible impact.

We have graduate and placement opportunities for highly motivated students across a variety of our business divisions, including Finance, Engineering, IT, Agriculture, Science, Business, Human Resources.

To be considered for any of our schemes you must have a relevant degree and be expecting or have obtained a 2:1 classification. You need to be adaptable, resilient, and have well developed team working skills combined with a passion for the area of work that you are applying to.
